Before a company or traveler can sign on a vessel, a "charter party" or a "customs broker" must be drafted, negotiated and officially entered into by both the owner and the client. Charter parties are the contracts between a vessel owner (the charterer) and a client (the vessel owner or any agent signing on the vessel). A "customs broker" is an intermediary or agent who drafts these contracts and helps take care of the responsibilities of a shipping company or shipowner's clients for custom formalities. 6d1f23a050
